

Draft 1

My mom takes a big sigh as she puts all my clothes that don't fit me and the toys I
no longer want into a big garbage bag, and I ^{think} ^{to myself}, how did I ^{once} like all this stupid stuff? For example, I used to have a pillow. I loved that pillow.
I used to take that pillow ^{everywhere.} *
I don't even know where it's ^{recently} ~~now~~.
I'm into playstation. For example,
^{If} if I came home from school
and if my mom said she sold my playstation then I would go CRAZY!!!

Jonathan's first draft.

But when I think about the future, But in the 10 years, many from now, I will like different things.

If I came home and my mom ~~said~~ told me she sold my playstation I would not be upset that I would say ok I have ~~the~~ internet. Besides a lot of adults use the Internet for work. And that will lead me through the rest.

of my life, "I have am so grown up so fast that I don't like my pillow ~~and my~~ ^{but I like} playstation

Do you see how some things can get you people grow out of things fast. This happens so fast, even if you only like it for may buy something that one day. So when you go to the store ask yourself if will you think with this, be something that ~~is~~ are you your really want or ~~am I~~ just wasting my money?
