

Christopher M. Lee, Ph.D candidate in Cognitive Psychology is a national advocate, author, speaker and leader in the field of learning disabilities and adaptive technology.

In 1992, he published Faking It: A Look into the Mind of a Creative Learner, and in 2001, What About Me? Strategies for Teaching Misunderstood Learners (Portsmouth NH: Heinemann, Boynton and Cook). These books draw on Christopher's developmental experiences and his challenges attending the University of Georgia (UGA) in order to help teachers and parents optimize learning disabled students' performance.

Christopher has published a one of a kind on-line guide, Learning Disabilities and Technology, an Emerging Way to Touch the Future. He has published articles, chapters and several journals, and has been selected to chair many collaborative projects that relate to disability issues.

In 2003, Christopher was highlighted in a Microsoft video and publication, Microsoft Accessible Technology for Everyone (<http://www.microsoft.com/enable/casestudy/videos.aspx>). That year he was awarded the W.F. Faulkes Award by The National Rehabilitation Association for his contributions to the increase of knowledge in the fields of rehabilitation.

He graduated from UGA with a major in Speech Communication in June 1990. He served as Director of Georgia's Assistive Technology Project: Tools for Life, a project operated under the aegis of the Department of Labor, Division of Rehabilitation Services/Vocational Rehabilitation.

Christopher is working on national systems change with the Georgia Department of Labor, Department of Education, Department of Technical and Adult Education, Division of Rehabilitation Services and technology assistance projects throughout the country. Christopher has served as Executive Director of the Learning Disabilities Association of Georgia and President to both this organization and the Atlanta chapter of the Learning Disabilities Adults of Georgia.

Currently he serves as Director of the Alternative Media Access Center house at the University of Georgia, Department of Psychology.

Christopher Lee speaks on the following topics:

- The Dyslexic Writer: A personal story field with inspiration and motivation
- A Look Into the Mind of a Creative Learner: Incorporating creative strategies into the classroom or workplace environment
- Incorporating Universal Design for Learning in the Classroom or Workplace
- Choosing and Using Assistive Technology, Adaptive Mainstream Technology with Creative Learners
- Creating Accommodations for School and the Workplace
- Looking Into the Mind of the Misunderstood Learner
- Motivation and Building Student Self-Esteem

Books by Christopher Lee:

What About Me?: Strategies for Teaching Misunderstood Learners, Heinemann 2001

Learning Disabilities and Technology: An Emerging Way to Touch the Future, Tools for Life publication

Faking It, Boynton-Cook, 1992

To order a Heinemann title, contact your local distributor or call 800-225-5800

To book Christopher Lee for a speaking engagement, call Heinemann Professional Development at 800-541-2086, ext. 1117 or visit www.pd.heinemann.com. Updated 6/06